

These three areas interact and cause a vicious circle of depression or low mood that keeps spiralling down. They all impact upon each other, creating a knock-on effect. But there is good news. Breaking into this circle in one of the areas will help to reverse it. This in turn will help you to begin to feel better.